In mid-October, the United States military will take part in the bi-annual Bright Star Exercises in Egypt. Bright Star is a joint/combined exercise involving tactical air, ground, naval and special operations forces training. Bright Star is designed to enhance military cooperation among U.S. coalition partners and to strengthen joint commitment to regional stability and regional training.

The Exercise, which has been ongoing since the early 1980s highlights the important strategic relationship between the U.S. and Egyptian armed forces -- U.S. military and security aid to averages $1.3 billion annually -- and the significance the U.S. places on training in the region.

Bright Star is the largest U.S. military training exercise on foreign soil.
